ABSTRACT

SURYA PUTRA MANAB. Analysis Teaching Method of English Teacher for the Tenth Grade of SMAN 4 Parepare (Supervised by Ismail and Mujahidah).

The problem statement in this study is how the English teacher implements the method in the tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare. This study aims to identify the method used by the English teacher and implemented to the students.

This research is a qualitative descriptive study. This research was conducted at SMAN 4 Parepare. The research design used is a case study. The subjects of this study were one English teacher of class tenth grade and three randomized students. The object of this research is the process of learning English which consists of verbal and non-verbal activities. The techniques for collecting the data were observation and interview. The instruments of the data collection were observation sheets and interview guides. The data were analysed using the descriptive analysis technique applying the Miles and Huberman model. The activities of data analysis were data reduction, data display, and conclusion drawing/verification.

Based on findings, the approach used by teacher was communicative approach. Most of the techniques or method used by teacher is immediate association between the English word, phrase, and its meaning through demonstration or principles of direct method. In the case of the consistency, the English teachers still showed a considerable inconsistency. It is concluded that the English teacher still need further upgrading regarding approaches, methods, and techniques of teaching English as a foreign language.

CHAPTER 1

INTRODUCTION

1.1 Background of The Research

Education is one of the most important things in life, it means that every human being deserves and hopes to always grow in education. Education in general has a meaning of a life process in developing each individual to be able to live and live life. Therefore education is very important because without human education will be difficult to develop and even going backward, thus education should really be directed to produce quality human beings and able to compete.

One of the goals of improving the quality of education is the process of teaching and learning in the classroom. The main purpose of the teaching and learning process is to change student behavior based on the goals that have been planned by the teacher before the learning activities take place.

Changes in student behavior in educational goals are divided into three categories. They are cognitive domains, affective domains, and pshycomotoric domains. Cognitive domain refers to students' understanding of teaching and learning materials. Affective domains refer to student interests and student attitudes. The pshycomotoric domain refers to student progress. When the teaching and learning process is assumed to be a process of changing student behavior, it means that evaluation of the teaching and learning process becomes more important.

Evaluation is a process to collect, analyze and interpret information to determine the level of learning and teaching performance. Often the ongoing teaching-learning process is ineffective. Therefore it is necessary to evaluate the process in order to know the performance of students and to get input to the next step that is degrading, adding, modifying, or supporting the teaching and learning process. As a result, the effectiveness of the teaching and learning process will be ensured by looking at evaluation tools. For example, there are times when all the students in the class answer the question about the test correctly one hundred percent. That does not mean we can conclude that they are smart. We need to evaluate several factors such as, how to teach teachers, student performance in other fields, and test quality.¹

To measure the learning performance that has been achieved, good evaluation tool is needed. A good instrument will be one that can measure some aspects of ability and then classify students according to their understanding and also produce the same results in other periods and elsewhere.

Every teacher who teaches English is easy but it is difficult for students. The cause of the problem is how do we so that the English material that we provide can be accepted by students with the maximum and there is a positive response from students. Teaching English lessons is not just delivering the finished material, the important material that has been delivered wrong without taking into account the psychological students we learn. Does not a teacher want students to feel comfortable and happy about the material presented in the appropriate method. If students are comfortable and happy with the way we teach the material we submit to students will be quickly accepted by children.²

In every teaching activity, basically includes three activities namely, activities before learning, learning implementation activities, and activities after learning. In order for teaching activities to be effective, teachers should be able to choose the most appropriate teaching method. The learning process will be effective if it takes place in a conducive, warm, interesting, fun and reasonable situation. Therefore, teachers need to understand the various teaching methods with various characteristics, so as to be able to choose the right method and able to use teaching methods that vary according to the expected goals and competencies.

Teacher teaching methods are the means used to implement the plan that has been prepared in the form of real and practical activities to achieve learning objectives. Appropriate methods will make students feel happy and eager in following the teaching and learning activities in the classroom, and vice versa. Methods that are not appropriate will make students quickly bored, lazy and not eager in following the lesson. There are several methods of learning English that can be used by teachers, among others (1) Speech, (2) Discussion, (3) Exercise Method and so on. Teachers need to have knowledge of the various methods of learning English so that when teaching in the classroom teachers can use appropriate and varied methods.

²Nurmansyah,S.Pd, “The Fun Method of Teaching English, accessed from http://www.kompasiana.com/sarjanapendidikan/metode-mengajar-bahasa-inggris-yang-menyenangkan_54f97e95a333110a068b514f, on 22 september 2018, at 14.00 wita

Learning method is important to be studied because the learning method is an important part in the learning process. Interestingly whatever a material, but in the delivery of educators using methods that are not in accordance with the subjects will be useless, will not happen a good learning process and good learning outcomes as well. Because in teaching teachers must have the ability to use methods and media learning. Methods used in accordance with teaching objectives, methods used in accordance with the situation of learners, methods used in accordance with facilities and educators must have the ability to communicate with students.

As expressed by Syaiful Bahri Djamarah and Aswan Zain in his book "Strategi Belajar Mengajar", that if teachers in teaching and learning process does not use variation, it will be boring students, decreased student attention, drowsiness, and consequently learning objectives are not achieved. In this case the teacher requires variations in teaching. For that variation of the use of learning methods is necessary, for basic skills in English (listening, writing, reading, speaking) can be achieved well.³

Some of senior school in Parepare is still facing problems in improving learning achievement. This is indicated by the number of students who talk to their friends during the teaching and learning activities, when given the task by the teachers do not do immediately, the low interest of students to come to library, and more than 50% of students do not want to give his opinion when the discussion in the classroom, the absence of material questions when the teacher provides an opportunity to ask questions, and students are less understanding of the material given it is visible from the answers of students who are less appropriate when asked to explain by the teacher. In addition, teachers are less varied in using methods, Submission of material has not been packaged in an interesting manner so students tend to get bored and not pay attention. Teacher teaching methods used by teachers is thought to be one of the causes of low student learning motivation. This low motivation will have an impact on student achievement.

On the basis of the above background, the researcher is interested in conducting research on "AN ANALYSIS TEACHING METHOD OF ENGLISH TEACHER FOR THE TENTH GRADE OF SMAN 4 PAREPARE"

CHAPTER II

REVIEW OF RELATED LITERATURE

2.1 Some Pertinent Ideas

2.1.1 The Concept of English Teaching Method

English is a West Germanic language that was first spoken in early medieval England and is now a global. Named after the Angles, one of the Germanic tribes that migrated to England. English has developed over the course of more than 1,400 years.

English is the third most widespread native language in the world, after Standard Chinese and Spanish. It is the most widely learned second language and is either the official language or one of the official languages in almost 60 sovereign states. There are more people who have learned it as a second language than there are native speakers. English is the most commonly spoken language in the United Kingdom, the United States, Canada, Australia, Ireland and New Zealand, and it is widely spoken in some areas of the Caribbean, Africa and South Asia. It is a co-official language of the United Nations, of the European Union and of many other world and regional international organisations. It is the most widely spoken Germanic language, accounting for at least 70% of speakers of this Indo-European branch. English has a vast vocabulary, and counting exactly how many words it has is impossible.

Modern English grammar is the result of a gradual change from a typical Indo-European dependent marking pattern with a rich inflectional morphology and relatively free word order, to a mostly analytic pattern with little inflection, a fairly fixed (SVO) word order and a complex syntax. Modern English relies more on auxiliary verbs and word order for the expression of complex tenses, aspect and mood, as well as passive constructions, interrogatives and some negation. Despite noticeable variation among the accents and dialects of English used in different countries and regions – in terms of phonetics and phonology, and sometimes also vocabulary, grammar and spelling, English-speakers from around the world are able to communicate with one another with relative ease.⁴

The view of the concept of learning continues to experience changes and developments in accordance with the development of science and technology. Signs of these developments, we can observe based on the notions below:

2.1.1.1 Teaching is tantamount to teaching. Teaching activities are conducted by teachers to convey knowledge to students. In this concept, the teacher acts and plays an active role even very prominent and decisive. Teaching is tantamount to teaching;

2.1.1.2 Teaching is a teaching and learning interaction. Teaching takes place as a process of interplay influence in the form of interaction relationship between teacher and student. The teacher acts as a teacher, while the student plays a role as doing the learning act. Teachers and students show a balanced activity even if their roles are different but related to each other;

⁴Wikipedia, accessed from https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/English_language, on 15 March 2018, at 12.00 wita.

2.1.1.3 Teaching as a system. The meaning of teaching is essentially wider and not just as a process or procedure.⁵

According to Oemar Hamalik⁶, teaching has several definitions important, including:

- Teaching is conveying knowledge to students in school.
- Teaching is passing the culture to the younger generation through the institution of school education.
- Teaching is the effort to organize the environment so as to create learning conditions for students.
- Teaching or educating is to provide student learning guidance.
- Teaching is an activity preparing students to become good citizens according to the demands of society.
- Teaching is a process of helping students deal with people's daily lives.

From some of the above opinions, it can be concluded that, "Teaching is to convey knowledge to students to help students deal with the problems contained in everyday life.

In this case students can actually learn alone without any teacher, but often students have difficulty in understanding the contents of the book therefore, the role of teachers in teaching and learning process is very important.

The method has a very strategic role in teaching. Methods act as signposts or how to process learning so that it can run well and systematically.

⁵Mohammad Surya, Psikologi Pembelajaran dan Pengajaran. Bandung: Pustaka Bani Quraisy, 2004, hlm. 50

⁶Oemar Hamalik, Proses Belajar Mengajar, Jakarta: Bumi Aksara, 2004, hlm. 20.

Implementative learning methods implemented as a technique, which is doing what really happens to achieve goals. Here are some understanding of learning methods according to some experts:

According Suryosubroto, method is a way, which in its function is a tool to achieve goals. The more appropriate the method used the more effective the achievement of the goal⁷.

Meanwhile, according to Syaiful Bahri Djamarah & Aswan Zain suggests "the position of the method as one component that took part for the success of teaching and learning activities"⁸.

Nana Sudjana suggests that teaching methods is the way teachers use to connect with their students during teaching⁹.

The method literally means "way". In general, the method is defined as a way or procedure used to achieve a particular goal. In another opinion also explained that the method is the way or procedure used by the facilitator in the interaction of learning by taking into account the whole system to achieve the goal.¹⁰

According to academic research, linguists have demonstrated that there is not one single best method for everyone in all contexts, and that no one teaching method is inherently superior to the others.

Also, it is not always possible – or appropriate – to apply the same methodology to all learners, who have different objectives, environments and learning needs.

An experienced professional language teacher always adopts the Principled Eclecticism approach, deciding on the most suitable techniques and applying the most appropriate methodology for that learner's specific objectives, learning style and context.

Methods of teaching English have developed rapidly, especially in the previous 40 years. As a language learner, training manager, or teacher, it is important to understand the various methods and techniques so that you are able to navigate the market, make educated choices, and boost your enjoyment of learning a language.

2.1.2 Kinds of English Teaching Method

2.1.2.1 The Grammar Translation Method (GTM)

The grammar translation method cannot probably be traced back to the tenets of any particular master teacher or methodologist but it seems to be rooted in the formal teaching of Greek and Latin which prevailed in Europe for many centuries. Though Latin and Greek were not learnt for communication they were considered to be useful for intellectual discipline and were seen as a prestige symbol.

The grammar-translation method was the product of German scholarship. It was known in the United States of America as the Prussian method, as it had its origin in Germany or to be more exact in Prussia – at the end of the eighteenth century. Some of its leading exponents are J.

Seidentucker, Karl Plotz, H.S. Ollendorf and J. Meidinger – all German scholars.

This method was very popular with European and foreign language teaching from the 1840s to the 1940s, and in the slightly modified form it is being used in some parts of the world even today.

2.1.2.1.1 What is Grammar Translation Method?

It is a way of learning a language through a detailed study of its grammar. The learner then applies the rules of grammar in translating sentences and parts of texts from the mother tongue into the target language and vice versa.

- Grammar is taught prescriptively – through the presentation and study of rules.
- A distinctive feature of this method is its focus on translating the sentence.
- Accuracy is given great importance. The learner is required to attain high standards in translation. A.P.R. Howatt (1984) says : ‘High priority is attached to meticulous standards of accuracy which, as well as having an intrinsic moral value, was a prerequisite for passing the increasing number of formal written examinations that grew up during the nineteenth century.’
- Vocabulary is taught through bilingual word lists, reference to dictionaries and memorization of words and their meanings.
- The method focuses primarily on the skills of reading and writing, with little emphasis on listening or speaking.
- The mother tongue of the learner is used to explain new items and make comparisons with their equivalents in the target language.

In this method, the teacher is totally dependent on the text as s/he follows the given lessons and exercises in it rigidly. S/he has little scope for innovative planning to incorporate the actual needs of the learner in the classroom.

The learner is therefore exposed only to literary language. Communication skills are neglected with little attention to correct pronunciation.

2.1.2.1.2 In The Classroom – a Simulation

The input, given below, is taken from George Orwell's The Decline of English Murder and Other Essays:

George Orwell served in the Imperial Police in Burma during the 1920s. Below is an account of a hanging he witnessed: It was in Burma, a sodden morning of the rains. A sickly light, like yellow tinfoil, was slanting over the high walls into the jail yard. We were waiting outside the condemned cells, a row of sheds fronted with double bars, like small animal cages. Each cell measured about ten feet by ten and was quite bare within except for a plank bed and a pot for drinking water. In some of them brown, silent men were squatting at the inner bars, with their blankets draped round them. These were the condemned men, due to be hanged within the next week or two.

Step 1 (Learner read the passage)

Teacher : Nimish, read the next two lines.

Learner : 'Each cell measured about ten feet by ten and was quite bare within except for a plank bed and a pot for drinking water.'

Teacher : Now translate the sentence.

Learner : (in mother tongue) what does 'cell' mean?

Teacher : (gives translation in mother tongue)

Learner : (translates)

Teacher : (helps with ‘except for’ and ‘measured’)
 (This activity continues till the passage is ‘done’)

Step 2

Teacher : any question?
 Learner : what does ‘sodden’ mean?
 Teacher : (translates into the mother tongue. Gives explanations and illustrations in the mother tongue.)
 Learner : (in mother tongue) what is the meaning of ‘fronted with double bars’?
 Teacher : (gives a corresponding phrase in the mother tongue)

2.1.2.2 The Direct Method

The roots of the direct method go far back as the nineteenth century. In 1880, francoisGouin wrote a book called the Art of Teaching and Learning of Languages. According to this book, a foreign language could be taught using a series of simple events. The teacher described each event in the foreign language and set reading and writing tasks on these lessons. The teacher used full sentences in the foreign language as input rather than words and phrases; no translation was used.

This method, though not popular in France, found a ready audience in Germany. In the late nineteenth – early twentieth century, Henry Sweet (1845-1912), an English philologist, set about modifying and improving the ‘direct method’ as it was called, by the turn of the century.

The aim of the direct method was to get the learner to think in the target language.

2.1.2.2.1 The Direct Method: A Good Start to Teach Oral Language

Proponents of the Direct Method are of the opinion that “language consists - except for lexicographers - not of words, but of sentences”¹¹ which will enable the students to learn speech earlier. In the Direct Method language is learnt for communication, as Larsen-Freeman (2000) states language is primarily speech. Classroom instruction and classroom activities are carried out in the target language; therefore, students are actively involved in using the target language. Conversational activities hold an important place in this method. Through using language in real contexts, students stand a better chance of thinking, and speaking in the target language. Similarly, Stern points out that the Direct Method is characterized by the use of the target language as a means of instruction and communication in the language classroom, and by the avoidance of the use of the first language and of translation as a technique (Stern, 1983).

However, taking the students’ comprehension capacity into consideration, as long as the classroom instruction is conducted in the target language students will benefit a lot from the use of this method. Though this method was criticized for not teaching listening strategies systematically, there is no question that students’ listening development relies on listening to the target language continuously. Students who listen to the target language constantly tend to develop their listening skills.

¹¹W. Vietor, Der Sprachunterricht muss umkehren, O.R. Reisland, Leipzig, 1882, hlm 4.

2.1.2.2 Principles of the direct approach

The teaching methodology was based on the following principles:

- The process of learning is essentially one of forming associations: speech with appropriate action, words with concepts and objects. The associations had to be direct, concrete and definite, and cross associations which conflicted with each other had to be avoided.
- Repetition was essential if associations had to be formed and reinforced. The teacher should begin with a limited number of items.
- Memory depends not only on repetition, but attention and interest as well. So, if a learner is motivated and wants to learn a language, s/he will do it.
- The teaching materials, namely, texts, dictionaries and grammar should be interrelated and coordinated to make learning effective.
- Formal teaching of grammar should be done only after learners have intuitively absorbed it from the texts. There should be no memorization of word lists, verb declensions, etc. grammar teaching should begin at the sentence level (and not word level) as syntax is the most important part of grammar.

2.1.2.2.3 Stages of learning

Direct Method divided the learning of a target language into five stages.

1 Mechanical	2 Grammatical	3 Idiomatic and lexical	4 Literary	5 Archaic
Pronunciation of words and sentence are mastered thoroughly	The grammatical categories in the text are identified and taught. The teaching of grammar is graded from easy to difficult	Idioms in the text and other sources are taught systematically	graded texts from contemporary literature are studied	Older literature with particular emphasis on its lexical and syntactical items is studied

2.1.2.2.4 In the classroom – a simulation

A class which used a direct method textbook would be conducted in the following way:

Step 1

Teacher: (*t*ouching the blackboard) the blackboard is black.

(*Sh*owing a piece of chalk) the piece of chalk is white.

(*H*olding up a book) this book is red.

(*P*ointing to another book) that book is green.

(*H*olding up a piece of paper) this piece of paper is yellow.

It's blue.

(During this part of the lesson, learners listen to the target language)

Step 2

(In the next stage, the teacher asks the learners questions and gets them to answer in the target language. The question are distributed among learner in the class or, they may answer in chorus)

Teacher : is this piece of chalk white or blue?

Learner : it is blue.

Teacher : it's blue.

Learner : it's blue.

Teacher : is this piece of paper green or is it yellow?

Learner : it's yellow.

Teacher : (correcting the pronunciation of 'yellow') it's yellow.

Learner : it's yellow.

Teacher : class, repeat 'yellow'.

Class : yellow.

Step 3 (Other items are introduced later)

Teacher : look at the desk. What colour is it?

Learner : it's brown.

Teacher : look at the book. What colour is it?

Learner : it's green.

Teacher : is it yellow?

Learner : no, it isn't.

Teacher : touch the desk. What colour is it?

Learner : it's brown.

Teacher : touch the wall. What colour is it?

The exercises normally consist of questions/answer based on what is done in the class. Some blank-filling and transformation exercises too are included.

2.1.2.3 The Audio – Lingual Method

This method was developed mainly in America in the sixties and seventies. The Audio – Lingual Method can be based on rigorous scientific disciplines like linguistics and psychology.

The roots of the audio – lingual method can be traced back to the language teaching programmes devised in America during the Second World War. Its focus was on the learner's ability to gain the communicative skills required in everyday discourse, particularly the skills of listening and speaking in the target language. William Moulton of Princeton University enumerated five slogans which formed the basis of the audio – lingual method.

Language is speech, not writing.

A language is a set of habits.

Teach the language, not about the language.

A language is what native speakers say, not what someone thinks they ought to say.

Languages are different.

As you can see, these slogans are influenced by behaviourist psychology and structural linguistics.

2.1.2.3.1 Main features of the audio – lingual method

The audio – lingual method treated each language skill separately: listening, speaking, reading, and writing. This method focused primarily on the skills of listening and speaking, in accordance with Moulton's first slogan: language is speech, not writing. The skills of writing and reading were not neglected, but the focus throughout remained on listening and speaking. Dialogues were the main feature of the audio – lingual syllabus, and they were the chief means of presenting language items. They also provided learners an opportunity to practise, mimic and memorize bits of language. Pattern drills were an essential part of this method and used as an important technique for language teaching/learning. The language laboratory was introduced as an important teaching aid. It gave learners an opportunity to mimic a model and memorize language patterns. Like the direct method, the audio – lingual method too tried to avoid the use of the mother tongue, though perhaps not so rigidly.

2.1.2.3.2 Techniques of the audio-lingual method

The skills were taught in the following order: listening → speaking reading → writing. The first few stages concentrated on listening and speaking skills.

Language was introduced through dialogues which contained common structures used in everyday communication as well as useful vocabulary. The dialogues were memorized line by line. Learners mimicked the teacher or a tape, listening carefully to all the features of the spoken target language. Native speaker – like pronunciation was important in presenting the model.

Phrases and sentences of a dialogue were learnt through repetition, first by the whole class, then smaller groups and finally individual learners.

To consolidate what was learnt, the dialogue was adapted and personalized by application to the learner's own situation. These drills were practised orally, first in chorus and later individually. Some generalizations (not rules) were given to advanced learners about the structures they had practised.

Reading and writing were introduced in the next stage. The reading material was generally based on the oral lesson in order to establish a relationship between speech and writing. All reading material was introduced orally first.

Writing, in the early stages, was confined to transcriptions of the structures and dialogues learnt earlier. Once the learner had mastered the basic structures, s/he was asked to write reports/compositions based on the oral lesson.

2.1.3 The Advantages of Using Teaching Method

Methods are expected to create the interaction of teaching and learning between students and teachers in the learning process. With the selection of good and appropriate methods and on target will increasingly create educational interaction is getting better too. According Darwyan Shah¹² method plays an important role in teaching, including:

¹²Darwyan Syah, dkk, Perencanaan Sistem Pengajaran Pendidikan Agama Islam, Jakarta: Gaung Persada Press, 2007, h.134.

2.1.3.1 Method as an extrinsic motivational tool

One component of teaching that can provide motivation to learn to students is the teacher. Skills using a variety of teaching methods teachers can generate and maintain the motivation to learn that students have. Teaching methods used by teachers should lead to positive attitudes of students as well as generate excitement and enthusiasm for learning.

2.1.3.2 Method as a teaching strategy

The teaching strategy is the real action of a teacher in teaching by using certain ways and using the teaching components (objectives, materials, methods, tools, and evaluation) that aims to enable students to achieve defined learning objectives. One way to implement a strategy well is to use varied teaching methods.

2.1.3.3 Method as a means of achieving goals

The purpose of teaching will not be achieved if one of the teaching components is not involved. One such component is the teaching method. Through teaching methods teachers can connect students with materials as well as learning resources. Through intermediate methods students can master the teaching materials which is the goal of teaching.

The use of varied teaching methods will foster participative spirit of students, reduce boredom, foster interest and provide opportunities for students to determine the right choice with their own learning styles. Haris Mujiman states that "The determination of teaching methods is closely related to the development of student learning because appropriate methods will foster learning motivation and good learning motivation along with reflection ability will encourage student learning."¹³

2.1.4 Factors Affecting Method Selection

According to Ismail SM¹⁴ before deciding to choose a method to be more effective a teacher should consider the following:

2.1.4.1 The Purpose

The method chosen by educators should not conflict with the objectives that have been formulated, but must support where the activities of educational interaction proceed to achieve its objectives.

2.1.4.2 The Characteristics of Student

Differences in the characteristics of students need to be considered in the selection of teaching methods. Aspects to consider in choosing teaching methods are biological, intellectual, and psychological aspects.

2.1.4.2 The Ability of Teacher

The ability and experience of teaching, teachers will influence how to choose a good and proper teaching method so that the teacher's ability should be considered in the selection of teaching methods.

2.1.4.3 The Lesson Material

It is important to recognize the nature of the lesson material that will be delivered, because not all methods are suitable to be used to deliver the lesson.

¹⁴Ismail SM, Strategi Pembelajaran Agama Islam Berbasis PAIKEM:Pembelajaran Aktif, Inovatif, Kreatif, Efektif dan Menyenangkan, Semarang: RaSAIL Media Group, 2008, hlm.32.

2.1.4.4 The Situation of Class

Classroom conditions from day to day will always change according to the psychological condition of the students. Therefore in determining the teaching method the teacher must take into account the class dynamics from any angle.

2.1.4.5 The Facility

Teaching methods chosen by teachers should be tailored to school facilities.

2.1.4.6 The advantages and disadvantages of the method

The advantages and disadvantages of the method should be taken into account in choosing teaching methods. If necessary the combination of method can be done by the teacher to cover the weakness of other methods. Based on the above description can be concluded that the selection of teaching methods used by teachers should be based on certain criteria, should not be using the method of teaching. These criteria include how the class situation, the material to be taught and the completeness of the facility.

2.2 Previous Related Research Finding

This part discusses the previous studies especially those concerning with the analysis about the effect of using any method on students.

Mahyudin (2012)¹⁵ has studied and analysed the effectiveness of teaching the simple present tense by using grammar translation method (an experiment study at the seventh grade of SMPN 1 Pebayuran). The aim of his research is to gain the information about is the usage of grammar translation method effective than the audio lingual method for teaching the simple present tense at the seventh grade of SMP Pebayuran. He conclude that teaching the Simple Present Tense by using Grammar Method has a significant influence and more effective than teaching the simple present tense by using Audio Lingual Method.

This research is Classroom Action Research (CAR) conducted in group B TK AttaqwaGerlong Academic Year 2012/2013. As a result, the application of direct methods can facilitate children's interest in learning English so that the response shown through action or verbal increases. Through direct method, it can assist teachers in preparing simple vocabulary, conversations, instructions or questions in English and repeated during class as outlined in the lesson plan.

2.3 Conceptual Framework

The researcher will conduct his research at SMAN 4 Parepare with the excuse of wanting to know how professional the English teacher is there. based on the researcher's observation, SMAN 4 students rarely get good achievements in the field of English so the researcher wants to find out the problem by looking directly into the field. The conceptual framework of this research is presented the following chart.

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHOD

3.1 Research Design

This research uses qualitative approach. Qualitative research can be interpreted as a research procedure that produces descriptive data in the form of words written or spoken from people and behavior that can be interpreted. Process and meaning (subject perspective) are more highlighted in qualitative research. Theoretical basis is used as a guide to focus the research in accordance with the facts in the field. In addition the theoretical basis is also useful to provide an overview of the background research and as a material discussion of research results.¹⁷

Kriyantono states that "qualitative research aims to explain the phenomenon in depth through the collection of data as deep as it is." Qualitative research emphasizes the depth of data obtained by researchers. The deeper and detailed the data obtained, the better the quality of this qualitative research. In this research, qualitative research is done by interview and observation method. Through this method, researchers will analyze the data obtained from the field with details.¹⁸

This study is directed to describe the symptoms, facts or events systematically and accurately, about the properties of a particular population or region without seeking interrelations and testing the hypothesis. From the results of this research description, will produce a description of the facts in the form of words written or spoken of the people and observed behavior.

The reason researchers choose qualitative descriptive research because the title of this research talks about the problem of teaching methods of teachers, based on the following considerations and arguments:

- 3.1.1 Qualitative research is based on a scientific background as a whole, rely on humans as a research tool, conduct inductive data analysis, directing the target of his research to find the basic theories are descriptive, more concerned with the process than the outcome, has a set of criteria to check the validity of data, and the results of his research are agreed upon by both parties: Researchers and research subjects.¹⁹
- 3.1.2 Through qualitative methods the author can know (subject) personally and see experiences that we may not know at all.

While the research approach used is case study, which is an intensive, integrated, and deep research. This research is explorative and profound in order to produce a picture of a particular event.

3.2 Location of the Research and Duration of the Research

The location of research in this research is carried out for the teacher of tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare. Then the duration of the research is one month. It is included in observation in the class and interview the teacher of the tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare.

¹⁹Lexy J. Moleong, Metodologi Penelitian Kualitatif, Bandung: PT. Remaja Rosdakarya. 2006, hlm.27.

3.3 Variable of the Research

The variable in this research used an independent variable of analysis teaching method and a dependent variable of English teacher.

- 3.3.1 The independent variable is analysis teaching method: analysis teaching method that can make the class fun in learning English in SMAN 4 Parepare.
- 3.3.2 The dependent variable is English teacher: in Merriam Webster's dictionary, "a person whose job is to teach students about certain subjects".²⁰

In this research, the researcher wanted to analyse the English teaching method of English teacher for the tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare.

3.4 The Focus of The Research

The research focuses on teacher's method in teaching English at SMAN 4 Parepare. The participant of the research is the English teacher of the tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare in the year of academic 2018/2019. Based on the previous observation the population English teacher in SMAN 4 Parepare comprised of four civil servants (PNS) and two honorary teachers. They are Baharuddin, S.Pd, Nurliah Beddu, S.Pd, Hj. Atirah, S.Pd, Kamisna, S.Pd, Muh. Facrul a. Usman, S.Pd, Hasriani Sarman, S.Pd.

Based on the population above, the researcher saw that the population of English teacher in the tenth grade of SMAN 4 Parepare academic year of 2018/2019 was probably enough to get the data.

3.5 Instrument of the Research

In this Study, a Research instrument according to Suharsimi Arikunto is a tool for researcher to collect data. Whereas according to Suharsimi Arikunto ²⁰Merriam Webster, diakses dari <https://www.merriam-webster.com/dictionary/teacher>, diakses pada tanggal 11 oktober 2018 pukul 01.00 wita.

in the previous edition was a tool or facility used by researchers in collecting data so that their work was easier and the results were better, in the sense of being more accurate, complete and systematic, so that they were easily processed.²¹

The instruments used by researcher in this case are principal instruments and supporting instruments. The main instrument is man himself while supporting instruments are observation and interview.

The main instrument in this study is the researcher himself. According to Moleong the position of researcher in Qualitative research is that he is also a planner, executor, data collection, analysis, data interpreter, in the end he becomes the reporter of the results of his research.²²

To help researchers as the main instrument, the researcher makes supporting instruments. In the preparation of these supporting instruments, Suharsimi Arikunto suggested that the selection of methods to be used by researchers was determined by the research objectives, research samples, locations, implementers, costs and time, and data to be obtained.²³ From the stated objectives, in this study using interview and observation methods. After determining the method used, the researcher compiles the required data collection instruments.

Furthermore, before conducting interviews and observations the researcher first makes the interview guideline grid as follows:

3.6 The Procedure of Collecting Data

Data collection in this research is that the researcher serves as the performer and instrument. As for collecting data used several methods of interview, observation, and documents.

3.6.1 Interview

Seidman (1998) states that conducting interviews is a fundamental way to obtain information about one's experiences and the meaning he or she makes out of these experiences²⁴. The purpose of the teacher interview in this study is to prove the results obtained from classroom observation and to obtain more in-depth information, free and flexible responses to obtain information about feelings, attitudes or emotions for certain questions that are not possible through classroom observation. The interview questions for the teachers were prepared based on the perceptual as well as the practical aspects of teaching method. In this study, interviews were conducted with direct informants and is done by asking open-ended questions, allowing respondents to give a broad answer.

3.6.2 Observation

This data collection technique is used to capture the data needed to complete the data from the interview. According to Sutopo, observation is an observational activity undertaken by the researcher, in which the researcher plays an active role in the study site so that it is actually seen in the activities examined²⁵. In this observation, researchers are involved with the daily activities of the person being observed or being used as a source of research data. Observation is used to understand the problems that exist around the perpetrators and resource persons²⁶.

Researchers present as pure researchers not as teachers or students. This observation technique is done to get data about the steps undertaken in thematic learning. Observation is done by plunging directly into the field actively to obtain a picture and a real description of the attitude and behavior of informants. the information obtained is then analyzed, interpreted, and summarized. To obtain the data, the researcher applies as observer as well as being a full member of the observed group, so that subjective impression can be muted.

3.6.3 Documentation

Documentation is the collection of data processed through documents. documents can be in the form of writing, drawings, or monumental works of someone²⁷. Documentation methods are used to collect data from document sources that may support or even contradict the results of interviews²⁸. This technique is done to obtain data in the form of documents or archives. Documentation method is implemented to complete the data obtained from interviews and observation. Data obtained in the form of writing, recording such as manual books, official reports, diaries, meeting minutes²⁹.

²⁸Harsono, loc. Cit.

²⁹Suharsimi Arikunto, Dasar-dasar Evaluasi Pendidikan, Jakarta: Bumi Aksara, 2009, hlm.135.

In this research, documentation was used by researchers in collecting official records and diary documents. The tool used is a voice recorder. Daily records are used by researchers in collecting data at a time during interviews. This diary is always carried out when conducting research and for writing complete data so that no data is missed. The tools used are books and pens

3.7 Data Analysis Techniques

The data analysis technique used in this study refers to analysis techniques during the field, Miles and Huberman models. Based on the model of Miles and Huberman, analysis of qualitative research data was carried out at the time of data collection, and after completion of the collection. Analysis of research data is carried out simultaneously, which includes three activities, namely data reduction, data presentation, and drawing conclusions.³⁰

3.7.1 Data Reduction

The data obtained from the field is quite a lot. For this reason, data reduction is needed. Reducing data means summarizing, choosing important things, focusing on important things, creating categories, and removing unnecessary ones. Data that has been reduced will provide a clearer picture and make it easier for researchers to collect further data. Data reduction carried out in this study by grouping collected data (creating categories). Based on the analysis instrument the researcher creates categories such as learning planning, implementation of learning, and interviews. This is needed to do the next stage, namely the presentation of data so that no part of learning is presented repeatedly.

³⁰Sugiyono, Metode Penelitian Pendidikan: Pendekatan Kuantitatif, Kualitatif, dan R&D, Bandung: Alfa Beta, 2009, hlm.337.

3.7.2 Displaying Data

After the data has been reduced, the next step is to present the data. Data presentation in qualitative research can be done in the form of brief descriptions, charts, relationships between categories, and the like. Presentation of data for planning and assessment of learning is done by presenting a brief description of each component contained in the instrument table for analysis of the implementation of learning plans. The presentation of learning implementation data is done by presenting in the form of narrative texts that describe learning that takes place purely, what it is in learning that occurs without including analysis or interpretation from the researcher. Through the presentation of the data, it will be easier to understand what is happening and plan for the next work.

3.7.3 Drawing Conclusion

Conclusions in qualitative research might answer the formulation of the problem formulated from the start, but also not. Conclusions are taken with regard to valid evidence. The conclusions in this study are descriptions of the 10th grade English learning methods at SMAN 4 PAREPARE.

CHAPTER IV

FINDING AND DISCUSSION

In this chapter, consist of research finding and discussion of data analysis

4.1 Findings

4.1.1 The Teacher's Method in Teaching English

English teacher of SMAN 4 Parepare were the object of this research. There was one English teacher and three classes as the respondent in this research from totally six English teacher. These classes were taught with same teacher because the researcher only focuses in the first grade of SMU. The name of the teacher as the object for the research is mam Nurliah Beddu, S.Pd. The researcher conducted the research on Monday, July 22th 2019 until Friday, 26th 2019.

Observation was done to find out what the teacher's method was used in teaching English and know the student's respons about the method was applied by the teacher. This observation was done at three classes during the teaching and learning process. In the class tenth, there was only one English teacher taught full English, while the other English teacher taught in class eleventh and twelfth. Number of students in each class tenth could be seen in the table as follows:

X IPA 1	X IPA 2	X IPA 3

Table 1. Number of students in each class tenth of SMAN 4 PAREPARE

In this observation, the researcher could see directly the method was used by the teacher in teaching English . In teaching English, the English teacher of SMAN 4 Parepare used direct method to achieve the purpose of English learning, also the teacher used a handbook as the helper for the teacher to achieve the purpose of English Learning.

At the beginning of the meeting the teacher introduced the material to the students after introducing the material, the teacher gave the handbook and then give the task of reading text before the students were asked to read the handbook, the teacher showed the good example to pronounce the text and pointed one of the students to reread the text. In the final activity, the teacher concluded the material and asked the difficulties were faced by the students in the teaching and learning process.

Students' responses of the method which was used by the teacher could be classified as standard because the students would be active if the teacher give attention to the students and some students are active to complete the task was given by the teacher, but when the teacher not give them attention, the students were not active and done other activities. The students didn't care about the task which given by the teacher.

4.1.2 The Result of Interview

The researcher doing the interview with the teacher of class tenth and also with the students.

4.1.2.1 The result from interview with the teacher

Based on the researcher interview result with the English teacher in SMAN 4 Parepare, Mam Nurliah Beddu, S.Pd, explain that method which used in English learning is direct method because Students can be motivated to be able to mention and understand sentence words in foreign languages taught by their teacher, especially teachers use visual aids and various kinds of fun media. In learning English, of course, the teacher initially teaches simple words and sentences that students can understand and know in everyday language (for example, pens, pencils, benches, tables, etc.), students can easily grasp foreign language symbols taught by their teacher and also, Students can gain direct and practical experience, even though at first the sentence spoken is not yet understood. In learning English of course students have different learning motivation. So that, the way to treat the student who had low learning motivation in learning English is the teacher directly comes to the student and provide special learning, especially students who are less intelligent or shy in saying a few words in English. The average ability of students in learning English are still quite standard because most students have a lack of vocabulary pronunciation, so by implementing this method there is little improvement and the students don't feel difficult in studying English.

4.1.2.2 The result from interview with Students

Based on the researcher interview result with the students in SMAN 4 Parepare. The researcher able to conclude that among 30 students there are 18 said that interested with studying English, and there are 12 said that not interested with studying English. Some various reason that the researcher found, start from the pronunciation, lack of vocabulary, and sometimes they feel bored with the method that the teacher apply in teaching English but also some of the students feel fun and enjoy in studying English by applying the method that the teacher used and they are not ignore every time the teacher gives them task in their handbook.

4.2 Discussion

In this research, researcher do observation and interview to know the method which is used by the teacher in teaching English. from the results of interviews and observations, the researchers found that the English teacher in SMAN 4 PAREPARE using Direct Teaching Method in teaching English.

According to Richards and Rodgers tell about Design features of the method, include:

- What the objectives of a method are;
- How language content is selected and organised within the method;
- The types of learning tasks and teaching activities the method advocates;
- The roles of learners;
- The roles of teachers; and
- The role of instructional materials

Also, method refers to “the level at which theory is put into practice and at which choices are made about the particular skills to be taught, the content to be taught, and the order in which the content will be presented”³¹.

Nurliah Beddu, apply direct method with the first step when enter in the room, she gives a speech and advise to the students. After giving greeting and advice to the students, then the teacher review little bit about previous material to the students. When the teacher begins to teach, the next step is the teacher introduces the materials and the learning objectives to the students and then divide the group of the students while explaining by using the second language.

A long of teaching and learning process, the teacher gives direction to the students who do not understand about the materials and also the teacher is paying attention to student activity in doing the tasks that are given. At the end of the lesson, the next steps is giving a chance to each group to answer the questions that have been provided and then the teacher asks the students' difficulties in the lesson and discusses the correct answer from the previous problem. Before ending the meeting, the teacher absent the students' attendance in the classroom and go home.

In this research, researcher did observation and interview to know student response about the strategy which is used by teacher in teaching English. From the result of interview and observation researcher found that the student's respond in English teaching method that have been in used by teachers in learning English are:

³¹ Richards, J.C. and Rodgers, T.S. (1986). Approaches and Methods in Language Teaching. Cambridge: Cambridge University Press. P15.

Class X IPA 1, students' respond in English learning are still classified standard because some students are not active and some are also active students. If teachers pay attention to the student, the students will be active and vice versa. In the learning process students are active with their activities even some students ignored the learning. Regarding the problem of teacher and student approach has not been fully fulfilled.

Class X IPA 2, students' respond in English learning are still considered to be standard level because not all students are active in reading comprehension lesson especially when they in group division. The students give information each other about the duty which is given by the teacher but even though the students give each other information, only one student was active in completing the tasks assigned by the teacher. Regarding the problem of teacher and student approach has not been fully fulfilled because the teacher focuses only on the active students only.

Class X IPA 3, students' respond in applying English teaching method are considered good because all of students are active in understanding the content of material that has been given by teachers, the students also share information in the form of vocabulary. In the group division, the students have their respective duties so the task that given by the teacher can be resolved quickly and the students can not realize that time has run out. Students and teacher approach was good because teacher focuses on all students so that students do not have the opportunity to do other activities.

After the researchers analyzed, the researchers found that the method used by teachers in English learning is direct method, the teacher apply direct method in English learning in SMAN 4 PAREPARE because students can practice their English skill specially in speaking and listening, together also in doing the tasks that are given. Students can improve some vocabularies to that are given along the material.

Researchers concluded that the implementation of direct method that the teacher uses for teaching is not fully effective because the teacher only focuses on the active students in learning. Then the teacher sometimes forget to translate in Indonesian when she mention the difficult vocabulary to the students, so some of the students was not active in English learning. Before starting the learning, the teachers should provide some instruction to students who are less able to understand the contents of the the material more deeply because the students' knowledge to understand the contents of the material was still quite standard. Then the teacher also need to give some refreshing to the students in the form of the game so that students did not easily bored in learning.

Students' response to the method that used by the teacher was still classified as the standard level because students will be active when the teacher reprimanded them directly, some students was also active in understanding the contents of the material, even some of them who ignore learning and create other activities that there is no relation with the material, in English learning students feel bored because the method of the teacher was not interesting without adding some game inside of the material. So the students were not interesting to the method.

From the explanation above it can be conclude that the learning process is not effective because the effectiveness of the learning process should be viewed from the relationship of certain teachers, in certain situations in an attempt to achieve certain instructional goals. The effectiveness of the learning process means the success rate of teachers in teaching certain groups of students with certain methods to achieve instructional goals.

According to Sinambela, learning can be effective when achieving the desired goals, both in terms of learning objectives and student achievement is maximized.

- Achievement mastery learning.
 - Achievement of student activity effectiveness.
 - Achieving the effectiveness of teachers' ability to manage learning, and student responses to positive learning.³²

Teachers really need to pay attention to the strategies used in the learning process because effective learning needs to be supported by the atmosphere of the classroom and learning environment is conducive.

Therefore, teachers should be able to manage the students, and manage the learning resources, create effective classes with improvements in the effectiveness of the learning process cannot be done partially, must be thorough start from planning, implementation, and evaluation.

It is as stated by Kenneth D. More that there are seven steps in implementing effective learning, namely: planning, formulation of learning objectives of learning planning to the students, learning process using sharing strategies (multi strategy), evaluation, closing learning process and follow up / follow up³³.

The related theory in this finding is used by Richards and Rogers (1986). According to these two experts, approaches in language learning refer to theories, assumptions, and beliefs about the naturalness of language and language learning while the method is an umbrella that links specifically between theory and practice. The method is an umbrella for practice; others remember the ability to link specifically between theory and practice.³⁴ However, if you find literature that actually puts the approach as an umbrella for others, don't be confused. For example, in 1963, Edward Anthony, an applied linguist from America, put the term approach (method), methods (methods) and techniques (technique) in a row. Anthony emphasized that what is a source of practice and principles in language teaching is approach. The method is a set of plans in teaching language material based on the chosen approach. Whereas technique is a particular strategy or procedure used to achieve goals, its nature is consistent with the method and also harmonious with the approach chosen. From this we can conclude that the approach is an umbrella of methods and techniques.

Likewise, Brown (2001) in his book Teaching by Principles emphasizes the same thing by introducing the term methodology as anything related to "how to teach", curriculum / syllabus as a design for organizing language teaching programs, and techniques more specified as a number of various activities, exercises or assignments that are applied in a language learning class to realize learning objectives³⁵.

Since the existence of methods and techniques - which are the 'weapons' of the teacher to conquer students in the classroom - is taken from the approach, then of course, the approach is a very important aspect in language learning. Approach is one important aspect in determining learning success. The approach chosen for a particular class setting determines a detailed pattern of learning activities in the class. If the approach chosen is in accordance with the characteristics of students, teaching and learning activities will run effectively, which is for further effects, learning objectives will be easily achieved.

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

5.1 Conclusion and Suggestion

Based on the result of data analysis, the researcher concluded that the English teacher who teaches in class X at SMAN 4 PAREPARE was used direct method approaching in teaching English. There are several reasons so that the teachers use direct method in their class. Firstly, the teacher only uses the second language being taught as an introduction. The first language is not used in class. The teacher usually starts learning by having a conversation and showing pictures. Besides that, grammar is taught in an integrated manner taken from the language expression being discussed. Secondly, the text is not analysed in grammar, but in meaning. Cultural understanding is also introduced as a very important part of second language learning.

5.2 Suggestion

Based on the conclusion above, the researcher would like to give suggestion for the teacher of SMAN 4 PAREPARE. The suggestion is method and strategy in learning English is very important to be implemented in the class for the teaching and learning process, so that Teachers should to pay attention the proper method which used in teaching and learning process.

In the learning process, teachers should to improve their knowledge and experience to understand the concepts, implementations and reasons in using teaching method in the class.

Nama : Nurliah Beddu, S.Pd.

Profesi: Guru X IPA 1

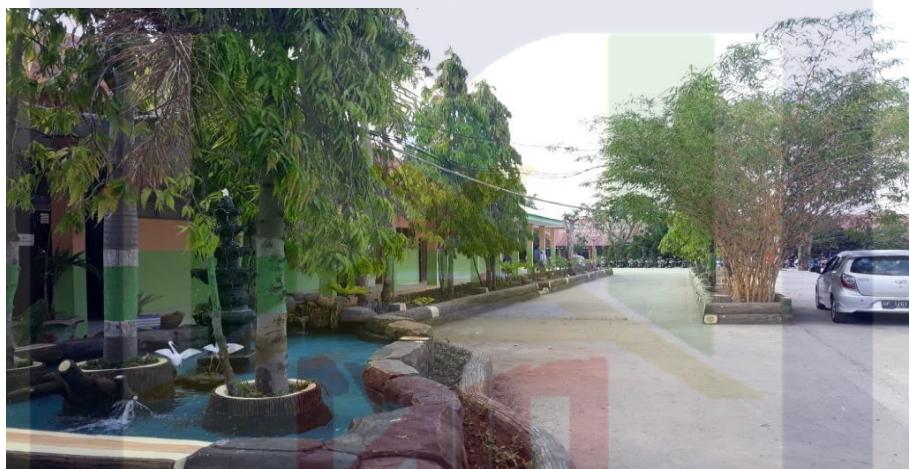

1. Metode yang saya gunakan dalam pembelajaran bahasa Inggris yaitu Direct method dan diselingi dengan beberapa latihan tugas yang ada di handbook, alasannya karena waktu yang di gunakan sedikit.
2. Ya.. jelas sudah tercapai ketiga aspek, karena kognitifnya itu siswa lebih mudah memahami isi bacaan yang ada di handbook mereka, dan efektifnya itu cepat prosesnya, dan psikomotorik siswa,kitabisa langsung menilai tiap-tiap individu.
3. Lebih banyak aktifitas komunikasi in speaking English karena vocabulary siswa juga bisa bertambah dan biasanya juga saya menggunakan aktifitas repetition ketika waktu yang dimiliki masih banyak.
4. Model pembelajaran individual saya mengecek beberapa siswa dibagian speaking meskipun ada beberapa siswa memiliki kekurangan dibagian grammar tetapi itu bukan prioritas dan saya lakukan secara acak.
5. Jelas berbeda terutama siswa yang agak malas atau motivasinya rendah
6. Kalau siswa yang memiliki motivasi rendah saya mendatangi langsung dan merangkul dan memberi pelajaran khusus dan memberi pancingan-pancingan jika mereka melupakan beberapa kosakata.
7. Dalam menghadapi karakter siswa yang berbeda kita harus pintar-pintar membujuk. Saya juga memberikan siswa motivasi belajar kepada siswa yang mempunyai nilai dibawah rata-rata.
8. Ada sedikit pengaruh terhadap jenis kelamin terutama laki-laki biasa malu sama siswa perempuan.

9. Tergolong biasa-biasa saja karena siswa-siswa tersebut memiliki kosa kata yang masih kurang.
10. Jelas ada sedikit peningkatan karena metode yang saya gunakan ini kita bias tahu langsung yang mana mana siswa yang perlu meningkatkan kosakata/vocabulary untuk bisa berbicara bahasa inggris dengan baik.
